

imagine

Born 1955, Died 2011

Donec ipsum eras ut euismod ante orci luctus et quam decima quinta

Steve Jobs (1955-2011)

was the co-founder and CEO of Apple Inc. He was born in San Francisco to his biological parents, and then raised by his adopted parents Paul and Clara Jobs. He was also the co-founder and CEO of Pixar Animations Studio. He invented a series of various Apple computers and the Macintosh computers. Some were a huge hit, while some were huge bombers. Jobs also invented the items we know and love today such as the the iPod, iPad, and iPhone. These devices have revolutionized our way of life and that is why he will be remembered.

The impact Jobs had on society was riveting. He changed the way adults organized themselves and how they got their work done. He improved our youth generations love of music and games by putting it all in one. Jobs enriched our joy of entertainment. All of his products are really big part of society. I mean one example is that the iPhone is sold in almost all carriers of cell phones like Verizon, Sprint, AT&T, T-Mobile etc.

The iPad is also being sold in the same carriers.

These are just mere examples of how Jobs affected society. Today Apple is so commonly known that people refer to it commonly and daily as in "Do you have your iPod?" or "Can you get me my iPhone?".

Overall Steve Jobs is a technology genius and I'm glad that I got to experience the new technology.

He will always be remembered.

2011

Steve Jobs' legacy will live on for many generations; whether Apple will close down or continue on without Jobs. Well I hope they do because I want our future generations to see how one man can change the world.